Feedback comment: add page structures to the Query Processing KU

How incorporated: added

Why not incorporated:

Feedback comment: Be explicit on how the Role of Data is a cross cutting area with both security and ethics

How incorporated: Added to the cross cutting section as well as a course packaging suggestion

Feedback comment: Rewrite the first paragraph to define the DM area - as was done in CS2013

How incorporated:

Why not incorporated: The target audience should know what DM is. Even if they are not confident, the enumeration of KUs is very descriptive.

Feedback comment:
How incorporated: Rewrite the second paragraph to be far more explicit regarding skills and technologies

Why not incorporated: This reviewer has a different philosophy with respect to a KA preamble. The goal is not to provide a sample preface to a textbook, but to write to an informed audience about the primary thrust of how this recommendation advises one to treat the topic.

Feedback comment: This reviewer has a serious issue with the assignment of hours to topics.

How incorporated:

Why not incorporated: I can’t fault the review since I do not believe that incorporating an hour count adds anything to the document. However, we were instructed that this must be a part of the document. Debating 2 vs 3 hours is not a rabbit hole I wish to go down. The only value in enumerating hours is in their relative magnitudes.

Feedback comment: A review rightly pointed that a CS Core learning outcome (programmatically access data from a database) cannot be achieved unless there is CS Core topic that deals with it.

How incorporated: Added as a CS Core topic

Feedback comment: The Center for Parallel and Distributed Computing has a worthwhile list of PDC topics to be included.
How incorporated: Most of their suggestions were incorporated.

Why not incorporated: Anything not incorporated was, using a broad interpretation, as already being present.
